                      ENGL 5633.01 (CRN: 76705, for M.A. students)
SECTION TIMES/DAYS: T 4:20-7:20pm
INSTRUCTOR: Molly Youngkin
CORE AREA: Not applicable
FLAGS: Information Literacy flag

COURSE DESCRIPTION/PRINCIPAL TOPICS
All of the novels for this class feature outcasts: criminals, the poor, colonial others, fallen women, and other people who did not fit into middle-class Victorian society. Worried about maintaining their status, members of the Victorian middle class had grave concerns about these outcasts. Yet, they also felt a strong impulse to help them, through charitable organizations, government-sponsored legislation, and personal involvement in the lives of individual outcasts. We will examine the contradictory attitudes of Victorians toward outcasts and consider how these attitudes were depicted in novels written by authors who, despite their middle-class status, sometimes felt themselves to be outcasts in Victorian society.

STUDENT LEARNING OUTCOMES
In keeping with the goals of the undergraduate and graduate programs in English, we will take as our objectives: studying literature of the period with a focus on both breadth and depth; improving our ability to interpret these texts in written and verbal form; and examining primary and secondary sources, in order to produce high-quality oral presentations and critical papers.

PREREQUISITES/RECOMMENDED BACKGROUND
English or Journalism major or minor; junior or senior standing

REQUIRED TEXTS

COURSE WORK/EXPECTATIONS
Seminar style, so strong emphasis on participation in class discussion and other class activities. Undergraduate and graduate students will write one short paper and one long paper, give an oral presentation, do a research assignment using historical documents, and complete an annotated bibliography. Graduate students will be expected to write longer papers, incorporate more sources into their assignments, and work with more sophisticated theoretical concepts in their assignments.

SECTION TIMES/DAYS: 01/ Thursday 4:20-7:20
INSTRUCTOR: Dr. Robin Miskolcze
CORE: Not Applicable
FLAGS: Writing

COURSE DESCRIPTION/PRINCIPAL TOPICS

This course traces American Realism and Naturalism in narratives written in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. Writers pondered the individual’s vulnerability to larger social forces, and whether or not men and women had the ability to live the “American Dream” when constrained by their own environment. During a crucial era of self-definition and demand for equal rights, female, Indigenous and Black authors mobilized realism in order to tell stories about their realities that challenged years of racist, sexist, classist and homophobic narratives about their lives and cultures. In a largely Christian culture dedicated to spiritual and material self-improvement, realistic and naturalistic literature interrogated the prejudices embedded in this age of the self-made man, oftentimes challenging mainstream, middle-class values.

STUDENT LEARNING OUTCOMES

Students will examine the historical, social and economic contexts of American Realism and Naturalism in literature.
Students will formulate theories about the differences and similarities between diverse writers within the Realism and Naturalism movement.
Students will learn how theories about race, gender, class and sexuality were promulgated and challenged.
