

PSYCHOLOGY DEPARTMENT

SEPTEMBER 2018 NEWSLETTER

PSYCHOLOGY FACT OF THE MONTH!

Why do we forget peoples' names, sometimes as soon as we hear them? Charan Ranganath, the director of the Memory and Plasticity Program at UC Davis, says it may be a couple of reasons, but he suggests using mnemonic devices or finding something distinctive about the person and relating it back to their name. Even quizzing yourself a few seconds later can be helpful. Read more about it here.

STUDENT HIGHLIGHT

KALEIGH CLOUGHER

Kaleigh is a senior psychology major and president of Psi Chi honor society! She is also Co-director of LMU's special games, treasurer of Delta Zeta sorority, and a supervisor at Malone Student Facilities. She hopes to pursue social work in the future. "I wanted to become a psych major after taking AP psych in high school. I found it interesting and knew I wanted to work with kids in the future so I thought psychology would be a good way of getting into a career where I can help kids."

FACULTY HIGHLIGHT

DAVID HARDY

Dr. Hardy is the Chair of the Psychology Department and an associate professor. He is currently co-teaching the Philosophy and Psychology of Free Will course. His research focus is in Neuropsychology. "I look forward, along with our students, to learn and experience new things this academic year. I urge students to be patient when school work is dull. To persevere when it is challenging. And to be passionate in learning, not only to carry you through the long day but to flourish. To thrive."

UPCOMING EVENTS

October 23, 6-7 p.m.: Graduate panel

Come listen to a panel of administrators from Pepperdine's Education and Psychology program, USC's Rossier School of Education, and more discuss their enrollment process and requirements. Participants can ask questions to learn more about what it takes to be in these programs and the benefits of a graduate degree.
